PHILODENDRONS AS HOUSE PLANTS

Philodendrons are house plants which seem made to order for today's indoor gardeners. The shape of their leaves compliment modern furniture and architecture, and they grow attractively in the warm and dry conditions of the average home.

Philodendrons are native to the tropical jungles of Central and South America. Therefore, they grow well in good light near a window, or in a somewhat dim corner. They will also endure rather moist or dry conditions, and high or low temperatures.

An important aspect of philodendrons is that they are available in long stemmed types which will climb on a suitable support, or the non-climbing self heading species which develop an attractive cluster of leaves. Both types have solid and cut leaf varieties.

One of the most common of the solid leaf climbing philodendrons is the oxyardium which has glossy green foliage. You should also try the silky, iridescent micans, and the black gold andreanum, which has dark leaves with yellow veins. These are improved climbing varieties.

Check with your florist or local greenhouse grower for other interesting species. You can find solid leaf climbers with variegated arrow shaped leaves streaked with cream, heart shaped leaves mottled with silver, and heart shaped leaves with emerald co lor on the edge and purple underneath.

Some climbing philodendrons have cut leaves which may have deep notches extending nearly to the midrib, be fiddle shaped, or have the appearance of butterfly wings.

The self heading philodendrons have a cluster of leaves growing from the crown. The foliage may be solid, deeply notched from the margin, or have small or large holes.

Philodendrons are among the easiest of house plants to keep in a healthy attractive condition. Plant them in a high humus mixture of equal parts of loamy garden soil, sand and shredded peat moss, with a half part of a dried manure.

Apply soluble house plant fertilizer every two to four weeks to maintain good green color. They need to be repotted only when the roots fill the pot and start to grow out through the drainage hole in the bottom.

Philodendrons tolerate a wide range of light but should not be placed in a hot, sunny window. They need fresh air but may be damaged by cold drafts.

Although philodendrons will grow very well in the atmosphere of the average home, a thirty per cent humidity is best. To increase the moisture around your plants set the pots on stones in a tray of water. Be sure the water level is just below the pots to avoid the soil becoming water logged.

Another good thing about philodendrons, you will have very little trouble with insects and diseases. Wash the foliage occasionally with soapy water, and syringe the leaves as often as possible to keep them fresh and clean.

Philodendrons are among the easiest of plants to propagate. For the climbing types make four to ten inch cuttings from the tips of the stems. The self heading types are propagated by small offset plants which develop around the crown.

Sorority Makes Donation

Eddie Lewis, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lewis of Spout Spring, has an unusual pituitary deficiency which can be helped through research and treatments at the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville.

Since the process is costly and funds for his treatments have been curtailed, Delta Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi has passed the hat at the past few meetings in order to raise money to help. $25.00 will go to the Lewis family from the Sorority for Eddie's treatments.

It is hoped, according to members of Delta Zeta, that other clubs and organizations in Appomattox will realize the need and help too. If a group of only 11 members can raise $25.00, now how much could your group raise?

Burley Tobacco Quota For '74 Announced

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz today proclaimed marketing quotas for the 1974, 1975, and 1976 crops of burley tobacco and called for a grower referendum for Feb. 25 - Mar. 1.

In the referendum, growers will decide by their votes whether marketing quotas and price support will continue in effect for the next three crops of burley tobacco.

The marketing quota announced for the 1974 crop is 608 million pounds, about 8 percent larger than the quota announced for 1973 crop. This increase was necessary to comply with the statutory provision that the quota for burley tobacco cannot be less than 95 percent of estimated domestic utilization and exports. it is estimated that 640 million pounds will be utilized in the United States and export-ed during the 1974-marketing year.

Legislation provides that the poundage quota established for any farm for any year shall be increased by the number of pounds by which marketings from the farm during the preceding year were less than the farm's poundage quota. Likewise any marketings in excess of a farm's quota are deducted from the farm's quota for the following year. If total marketings turn out to be 575 million pounds, as currently estimated, undermarketings of 1973 farm quotas will increase farm quotas in effect for 1974 by about 90 million pounds. Thus, farm quotas in effect for 1974 are expected to total about 698 million pounds, about 22 percent more than the quotas in effect last year.

Notice of individual farm poundage quotas for 1974 will be mailed to farm operators by local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees as soon as adjustments can be made to reflect undermarketings and overmarketings of 1973 farm quotas. As in the past, a small amount of quota will be reserved in 1974 to establish quotas for farms having no burley history during the last five years, for correcting errors, and for adjusting inequities.

Legislation provides that the Secretary of Agriculture shall proclaim marketing quotas for tobacco during the last year of the 3-year period for which quotas are in effect. Marketing quotas were proclaimed for burley tobacco for the 1971-73 crops on April 20, 1971 (USDA Press Release 1288-71). In a referenum held May 4, 1971, 96.6 percent of the burley tobacco growers voting favored marketing quotas on the 1971, 72, and 1973 crops.

Burley tobacco is grown principally in Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri.
